

No. 516 January 2012

A Wild Forecast for Euro Pain

By Oliver Marc Hartwich

24 January 2012

Revisiting my predictions for Europe in 2011 (Don't believe this forecast, December 23, 2010), I can today declare without any false modesty that I was right on the money. Not only that 2011 has been very much like 2010. It is also emerging that we will celebrate Christmas on December 25 this year – just as I had forecast last December.

Having thus established myself as a trustworthy futurologist, it is time to dust off the crystal ball so I can give you an exclusive preview of 2012. I hope you are seated with your seatbelts fastened. It's promising to be a bumpy ride.

Click here to read article.

This article was published by the Business Spectator on 22 December 2011.

Articles in the Perspectives series plus a large library of books, studies, speeches, articles and DVDs on a wide range of public policy issues can be found at www.nzbr.org.nz

Related studies and commentary:

Friday Graph: New Zealand Up There with Greece

A blog post from rogerkerr.wordpress.com

26 August 2011

By Roger Kerr

[\[Full text\]](#)

Can Global Financial Regulation Save us from Future Crises

A public address at Victoria University of Wellington

22 March 2011

By Gordon Thiessen

[\[Full text\]](#)

The Global Fiscal Crisis and the Future of Public Spending

A speech delivered to the Rotary Club of Wellington

1 February 2010

By Roger Kerr

[\[Full text\]](#)

PIGS and Euros

An article first published by The Independent Institute

7 April 2010

By Alvaro Vargas Llosa

[\[Full text\]](#)

Financial Turmoil: Market Failure or Government Failure?

An article first published by The New Zealand Herald

29 September 2008

By Roger Kerr

[\[Full text\]](#)

If you have received this email from a friend or colleague and wish to subscribe, please click here. If you wish to unsubscribe from the Roundtable mailing list, please click here.